

Resilient Communities:

A Trauma-Informed Approach to Supporting Survivors

This virtual workshop is designed to elevate the community's preparedness to respond to survivors using a survivor-centered, empowerment-based, and trauma-informed approach.

Equipping service providers to have an increased understanding of the complex factors survivors face helps to increase resiliency for survivors and decrease their likelihood of secondary victimization.

Promoting self-care and coping strategies can help to decrease the impact of vicarious trauma on service providers and those providing survivor support.
